LURGES Y. M. C. A. MEN TO GET INTO POLITICS

Atty, E. O. Lee Speaks on the "Civic Duty of Young Men"-Special Music

E. O. Lee, an attorney, spoke on the "Civie Duty of Young Men" at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. The meeting was well attended and a special musical program was rendered. Mr. Lee urged young men to take an intelligent part in the politics of their community. In his address Mr. Lee

We make society better or worse by the conduct of our lives, but the ballot box is the crystallized expression of that society.

At the election of Nov. 2, you vote perhaps either one ticket or the other, without considering the character and ability of the candidates named on that ticket: perhaps you do not know any. ticket; perhaps you do not know any-thing about the personnel of the re-spective tickets put before you and spective tickets put before you and from which you are to choose. Perhaps you will seek knowledge of the capabilities of the men who are named as candidates for the respective offices, but, if you do, your choice is then limited to the very few whose names are before you. They, probably, are all good men, but it is possible that none of them are men of your choice. Nay, under our present system it might be possible that each and all are wholly unfit for the office for which they are named. If that should obtain, whose fault is it?

WHERE FAULT LIES.

WHERE FAULT LIES.

It is the fault of those good people who do not attend the primaries and who refrain from taking an interest in politics—hook upon it, as it were, with contempt—wash their hands of political matters, and say they will have nothing to do with politics—hold themselves above it, as it were; will not attend the primaries, nor do anything to remedy the evils, whether imaginary or real, they so much decry agains.

If there is evil in politics (and I don't say there is not) whose fault is it? It is the fault of the good people who either through carelessness or indifference, or perhaps through pretended fear of contamination, fail to attend the primaries, or to take part in the preliminary political moves that are necessary to formulate the ticket of any party. If the candidates on your take the don't suit you, it is your own fault, unless you have done what you could to have the candidates you wanted placed on the ticket.

fault, unless you have attended the primaries, and unless you have done what you could to have the candidates you wanted placed on the ticket.

It is not dishonorable to engage in politics, as many would have you believe. On the contrary, you can do nothing more honorable than to take an active and lively interest in the political matters of your city, and of your county, state and fration. Nay, it is your daty. It is every man's duty to fully and thoroughly acquaint himself with the politics of his city and of his country, and then, with an enlightened conscience, do all in his power, manfully and honestly, to bring about what he decrees is best.

freight rates has reached the stage where aggravation foretells its doom, In its early history, what are now known as transcontinental freight rates, the original scheme graded the ates according to distance demarcatg the lines at New York, Pittsburg. incinnati, Chicago, Miszissippi river and Missouri river, which includes Du-luth, the gradation being 70 cents the hundred in favor of the Missouri river section to Pacific seaboard and tributary territory, as compared to the rates from New York, Thisadjustment

"This method was medified from time This method was modified from time to time, until these natural lines of demarcation have been wholly obliterated and the entire region eastward from Wyoming has been thrown into a pool of the postage stamp rate, or blanket rate scheme, of a single rate on the same article for the entire territory.

ORIGIN OF SYSTEM.

"The origin of this system of dis-

"The origin of this system of discrimination is traceable to the management of the Central Pacific Railway company, when it inaugurated the practise of arbitrarily hauling traffic through the interior points to which it was consigned, to San Francisco, and then reliauling back to point of delivery—a practise that came into vogue shortly after the completion of that line in 1869.

"Lacking in sufficient revenue at the outset to meet the operating expenses, and for the jurpose of meeting this need, the idea was conceived and established of enforcing the additional haulage so that the local rate from San Francisco to the interior point of consumption could be added as an extra charge to the through rate from the castern point of origin, which at that time was the same to the intermediate point as to the Pacific coast.

"And thus was the seed of injunity."

And thus was the seed of iniquity wn, the root of which has spread til it saps the virility of internal ommerce in every part of the Unit

"With the upbuilding of the interior the complaints of merchants became so clamorous that to stem this tide and evade remedial legislation, the railroads abandoned the practise of hauling the traffic the additional mileage, but made delivery direct. "However, they refused to relinquish the extra charge, which was still collected under the excuse that the railroads were perfectly willing to perform the service, and were only making direct delivery purely as an accommodation to the merchant." This vicious subterfuge has been used successfully for years to perpetuate this follow fully for years to perpetuate this false basis of charging for service not ren-dered, and not necessary, and by this means the consumers in the interior have been annually robbed of millions of dollars and the development of the wide territory has been retarded and

THE IMPELLING MOTIVE.

"The impelling motive is to so control the commercial situation as to force the unmanufactured product to the remote ends of the earth for manufacture and to compel the merchant to purchase his wares at the most distant market centers so that the transportation companies can secure the long haul in both directions.

"To filustrate the system as it actually operates: Green hides can be shipped to the Pacific seaboard, approximately 500 miles westward, thence reshipped to Boston directly through the point of origin at a lower rate than if shipped direct to Boston. The hides are manufactured into shoes in Boston for reshipment to the Pacific northwest.

In turn, the shoes can be shipped through to the coast and returned to the interior at the same rate as delivered direct, the interior rate being the sum of the rate to the coast and back."

Theater—The house will be dark all this week, but a big rush is looked for next Monday, when the far famed dramatic success, "A Gentleman From Mississippi," comes for a week's engagement. Mr. Sam Thall, the advance manager, whose name is allied with some of the strongest successes of past years at the Salt Lake theater, is in town attending to the billing of the conding attraction.

Mr. Thall was last here with "The Man of the Hour," which he says will be sent us again during election week.

The Opera Season—The enjoyable opera season furnished by the International Opera company at the Colonial last week, came to an end Saturday afternoon and evening with presentations of "Carmen" and "La Traviata." The features of the afternoon performance were the Carmen of Madame Therry, and the Don Jose of Mr. Colombini. The gentleman who sang the Toreador was not equal to the role, but Toreador was not equal to the role, but as a whole the performance gave sat-isfaction.

In the evening there was a handsome audience to witness the ever popular and tuneful "Traviata." with Madamc Norelli in the title role. She again showed herself an admirable artist of the coloratura style, but was not supported as she should have been by the tenor of the evening whose name we believe is Chialla, though these programs are so fearfully and wonderfully made, that it is difficult to be exact. One of the real hits of the evening was made by the baritone, whose name is also undiscoverable. Strong applause was also bestowed upon the violin solosist, which was well deserved, but the chorus was only fair, and the great In the evening there was a handsom

The four operas rendered by the International Opera company have given us an excellent taste of the real article, and if the management will strengthen their chorus, and two or three weak points in the principals, they can always be assured of a royal reception on their return to Salt Lake.

Some favor it when the club moves into its new home, and others think that the date should be fixed at the new year. Some favor a period of notice varying from 30 days up to six months. Others think that it might tend to make the club exclusive, and prevent the entrance of many worthy and capable young men who could not afford the price.

Some of the members think the raise should be left with the board of governors, and others express them selves that the needs of the club should govern the matter. Some of the members who live in different parts of the state, and who seldom if ever use the club, feel that membership in the club is an honor, for which a man ought to be willing to pay. Others again express the opinion that the fee should not be raised until a membership of 1,000 is reached, when a waiting list should be kept. This volume deals with the history of the Church from May 5, 1842, to 31st of August, 1843. It, therefore, covers a period of about sixteen months. The main external events may be set down as follows: First, exposure of the wickedness of John C. Boggs, under whose celebrated exterminating order the body of the Church was driven from Missouri; (3) the attempt of the state of Missouri to extradite the Prophet from the state of Illinois, to be tried as an accessory before the fact to an assault on ex-Governor Boggs; (4) a second attempt on the part of Missouri to extradite the Prophet from the state of Illinois on the old charge of "murder, treason, burglary, arson, iarceny, theft and stealing." first brought against him in the year 1838; (5) a preliminary prospecting of the west, doubtless with a view to the contemplated removal of the Saints to the Church as an organization there
